

Is underpaying police officers good for the bottom line?

The Citizens Budget Commission is testifying against New York City police officers' demands for a fair wage. But its board is made up of top executives from some of the city's largest corporations.

Aren't their businesses booming because NYC is the safest big city in the nation?

Isn't public safety their business, too?

Patrolmen's Benevolent Association of the City of New York

125 Broad Street, 11th Floor, New York, NY 10004 • 212-233-5531

Patrick J. Lynch, President

www.nycpba.org